The site evaluation process begins when a homeowner hires a local engineer, land surveyor or soil scientist to conduct preliminary soil investigations and submits an Onsite Sewage Disposal Application and plot plan. The data submitted to the Jefferson County Department of Health is then reviewed by one of its Environmental Health Specialists. The Environmental Health Specialist travels to the site to evaluate the data submitted as well as performing a soils examination prior to determining the feasibility of constructing an onsite sewage disposal system.

• System Construction

After the Jefferson County Department of Health issues a permit to construct an onsite sewage disposal system, a Building Permit can be issued. The mobile home is located, and the onsite sewage disposal system is installed.
